The University of Connecticut Avery Point Athletic Hall of Fame honors those individuals who, in a superlative fashion, have distinguished themselves in a manner consistent with the philosophy and ideals of the institution.

Induction into the Hall of Fame is based on the principles of athletic achievement, meritorious service, integrity and sportsmanship while upholding the highest standards of excellence.

In order to be eligible for nomination as a student-athlete, an individual must have attended the University of Connecticut Avery Point and participated in a varsity sport for a minimum of one year. In addition, they must be out of the University for a minimum of five years.

In order to be eligible for nomination as a coach, an individual must have served in that capacity for at least five years and left the University in good standing.

Teams may also be nominated for induction into the Hall of Fame, but should have, at a minimum, qualified for a National Tournament during that particular season.

Exemplary contributors to the University of Connecticut Avery Point athletic department that were not coaches or student-athletes may be eligible for consideration as well.
